Mark 15:10-20

For he realised it was out of jealousy that the chief priests had handed Jesus over. The chief priests, however, had incited the crowd to demand that he should release Barabbas for them instead. Then Pilate spoke again, 'But in that case, what am I to do with the man you call king of the Jews?' They shouted back, 'Crucify him!' Pilate asked them, 'What harm has he done?' But they shouted all the louder, 'Crucify him!' So Pilate, anxious to placate the crowd, released Barabbas for them and, after having Jesus scourged, he handed him over to be crucified. The soldiers led him away to the inner part of the palace, that is, the Praetorium, and called the whole cohort together. They dressed him up in purple, twisted some thorns into a crown and put it on him. And they began saluting him, 'Hail, king of the Jews!' They struck his head with a reed and spat on him; and they went down on their knees to do him homage. And when they had finished making fun of him, they took off the purple and dressed him in his own clothes. They led him out to crucify him.

4th week in Lent: Weekly reflection : St Patrick v St David

Yesterday, as I write, was the feast of St Patrick. There are many who have reason to be grateful that a Welshman (?) named Patrick was born in these lands, way back around 385. I am such a one and I'll tell you why.

My grandfather was a Welshman, a staunch Protestant and a purveyor of black pudding! Whether he made the yucky stuff or just sold it, I do not know. What I do know is that, unsurprisingly, it brought very little money into the poverty stricken household. Sadly, he was long dead before I was born.

But fortune smiled on him. One day he encountered something as unlike a chunk of black pudding as the human mind is capable of imagining - a beautiful Irish colleen, who, because of St Patrick, was a Catholic.

In due time, my father was born. But, for my grandfather, one thing was utterly certain, he wasn't going to be baptised a Roman Catholic!

Babies have a habit of creating a lot of washing and for my grandmother the only place to do it was outside at the communal wash-place where, no doubt, she enjoyed the friendly company of many other young mothers.

But one day, hidden among what looked to my grandfather like a straightforward bundle of laundry on its way to the wash-place, was his tiny son. His wife's destination was a laundry of an entirely different kind - she was on her way to the Catholic church to baptise the baby.

And, as they say, the rest is history. So who has had the greater influence on me, a Catholic priest and a proud Welshman - St David or St Patrick? Half-time score: Patrick 1 - David 1. I've often thought about the spiritual consequences of that act of disobedience to husband in favour of obedience to God. As a priest, I have served the Church for already fifty-five years. I take no credit for whatever may have been achieved in that time for everything must be accredited to the grace of God. Whatever was achieved has had its own repercussions as well - and all this, humanly speaking, pivoting on a poor young woman smuggling her baby to church in a bundle of laundry! Such a little, little thing!

But was it not St David who made this very point when, in his famous final sermon, he urged his followers to take care of the little things in life? His lesson was that you just never know how God may use in the future whatever you do in the present.

Final score: Patrick 1 - David 2. Father Antony

Mass Intentions: Have you ever thought about arranging for a Mass to be said for a particular intention? To understand more about having a Mass said for a particular intention, please kind read below: <https://aleteia.org/2017/09/02/what-are-mass-intentions/>

Contact the parish office or sacristan to arrange for a Mass to be said for you.

Can you help? Can you support the parish donation?

Keeping our church warm, paying the lighting and electricity bill, fixing the roof when it leaks, supporting the Diocese of Wrexham through a yearly levy, which is quite big, and taking care of other recurrent expenditure only happens thanks to your generosity dearest parishioners and friends. We don't receive any money from the council or the Vatican! Perhaps you could consider setting up a standing order to support the running costs of your parish which is huge. At this challenging time, it won't be possible for everyone to help in this way, but if you can, you'll find the parish bank details in the newsletter. Alternatively you can make a one off donation. Parishioners who have left legacies for us in the past are the reason why we are still open. Consider helping us to stay open please. Thank you.

Lenten Penitential service: On Saturday 2nd April we will be holding our Lenten penitential service, at 10am.

CYTYN: There will be a second collection on Saturday/Sunday 9yh/10th April for CYTYN, this is a local council of Christian churches and places of worship.

Stella Maris friendship and companion group: Are you lonely and looking for friendship and companionship? We would like to hear from you, to help in the start up of our new group. We will meet to have coffee and chats, to go walking, to go to the theatre or cinema, to travel and to share in both happy and sad times. If you are interested and would like to find out more, please contact Jane Baines on 07849253732 or Jane Miller at hjm031@outlook.com

The Universe Catholic Weekly is thrilled to announce that we have launched our new online newspaper with the full support of our first subscriber none other than His Eminence Cardinal Vincent Nichols.
